WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29, '92.
The Blaine talk, like the silver question, will not "down." It is heard wherever Republicans congregate. The silver Republicans are largely responsible for this Blaine revival, so to speak. They are averse to supporting President Harrison, because of his well known opposition to free coinage, but they are perfectly willing to take Mr. Blaine without knowing that he is any more friendly to free coinage than Mr. Harrison is. The anti-Harrison Republicans generally have also, it seems, come to the conclusion that the only way to keep Mr. Harrison out of the nomination is to nominate Mr. Blaine, and if they can have their way the Minneapolis convention will nominate Mr. Blaine whether he will or not.

In these days of bitter and narrowing partisanship in Congress it was a positive pleasure to hear Representative Hooker, of Mississippi, who is a Democrat, make a speech in the House praising the administration for the diplomatic victories it has won. He said that the manner in which Secretary Blaine had treated the complications with Chili and Great Britain proved him to be a great statesman.

If the Canadian sealers think to avoid seizure in Behring sea by sailing under the Mexican or other flags they will make a costly mistake, as the commanders of the United States vessels will have orders to seize all vessels caught taking seals, without regard to the flag under which they sail.

Senator Hill is confident that he will receive the Democratic nomination for President, but the Cleveland Democrats in Congress declare most emphatically that he has not even the ghost of a chance. "You pay your money and you take your choice."

If Representative Eulace had wished to make the public sympathize with Commissioner Rann, he could not have accomplished his purpose quicker or better than by losing his temper and calling that gentleman a liar, as he did when Mr. Rann was on the stand testifying to the committee which is conducting the investigation of the Pension Bureau, and his attempting to strike Mr. Rann after having called him a liar did not mend the matter. Personal abuse never convinces anybody. It usually reacts upon those who indulge in it. Representative Wheeler, who is chairman of the investigating committee, has the right idea. He said, after the disgraceful occurrence alluded to above: "Mr. Rann came here in response to a summons from this committee to testify, and he must be treated like any other witness. Whether his testimony be true or false does not matter. After his statements have been made any other man who cares to may have the opportunity to take the stand and deny or disprove them."

Representative McCrae, chairman of the House committee on Public Lands, has reintroduced a bill which has been before several Congresses, providing for the forfeiture of all lands granted to railroads opposite to and coterminous with such portions of the railroad not completed within the time specified in the original grant.

It begins to look as if the much talked of investigation of the Census Bureau, which was authorized by the House some time ago, will amount to nothing. Democrats who instigated the resolution say this is because the investigation was put in the hands of the House Census committee, members of which are under personal obligations to Superintendent Porter for patronage, and the Republicans say it is because there is nothing to investigate.

Persistence always tells, in Congress as elsewhere. Early in the present session Representative Watson, of Georgia, as a result of a conference of the Farmers' Alliance members of the House and in response to requests made by labor organizations in all sections of the country, introduced a resolution reciting the semi-military character of the services performed by men in the employ of the Pinkerton detective agencies for various corporations, and authorizing an investigation of their methods. Although the Alliance members persisted in asking that the resolution be reported to the House, for a long time they were put off by a majority of the Judiciary committee, to which the resolution was referred, with vague talk about the constitutionality of such an investigation—the constitutional luncheon invariably bobs up when the interests of big corporations are threatened in Congress—but they still persisted, asking that the resolution be reported, even if adversely, in order that they might compel members of the House to put themselves on record for or against it. At last the committee has decided to report a substitute, striking out the allegations of the fact in the Watson resolutions, but authorizing an investigation of the Pinkerton system and methods.

WORLD'S PEANUT CENTER.

The Unique and Profitable Distinction Enjoyed by the Little City of Norfolk.

Norfolk has a crop which is worth millions of dollars annually—peanuts. Norfolk supplies the civilized world with peanuts, says the Baltimore Sun. The street corner Italian who empties a pint in your overcoat pocket, and the Parisian fruit merchant who weighs you out a quarter of a kilogram of the homely nuts, get them from here, for this is the only peanut market in the world. Smyrna has its figs, Bordeaux its dates, Bordeaux its grapes, and Norfolk its peanuts. What would life be without peanuts? One can scarcely picture an existence which would be tolerable under such circumstances.

The peanut magnates grow the edible tuber in Nansemond, Isle of Wight, Surry and Southampton counties, but the common market is in Norfolk. The rows for the nuts are laid off three feet apart. They are made fifteen inches deep, and phosphates are largely used as an under dressing. They are strewn along in these trenches about the middle of April, and mature after the same term which is required for potatoes. It is a crop which is marketed like the Dutch drumhead and purple Savoy cabbage, running from November to March. The nuts, however, have to go through factories before they are shipped northward and these factories are, with a few exceptions, situated in Norfolk. There are two factories in Franklin, Southampton county, Virginia.

"What is a peanut factory?" might be asked. A peanut factory is a place where they put the "goobers" through some such process as wheat has to undergo when it is being cleaned of chaff and rid of cockle. The most complicated machinery is used to assort and polish the nuts, and when they are packed in the ninety-pound bags the prime class bring by the pound from $2.75 to $3 a bag. The "tops" bring this price in Northern cities, and are mostly used by the swell grocer. The street corner vender sells at his apple stand the second grade, and the old lady at the foot of the wharf carries a stock of doubtful "tailers." This is the result of a market which yields to Virginia trustees $8,000,000 annually. It is second in importance only to the sweet potato crop of Accomac and Northampton counties, on the eastern shore of Virginia, which is calculated at as many millions per acre as Bermuda has square feet, and Bermuda is the only yam raising country that can compete with the southern peninsula.

THE NEW PRESIDENT.

Sketch of the Man Who Will Serve at the Head of the Council.

In our sketch of the material that is to be given the city for the next two years we did not have the full history of one of its most prominent members, and as a sketch of the man who this article has reference to may be a stepping stone to others, we give a partial history of one who is a good example of what intelligence and energy can do.

B. J. Treacy, or more familiarly known as Barney, was born in the village of Frenchtown, parish of Ballinacorney, county of Roscommon, Ireland, and came to America about 1860. Being raised in a horse country, or what might be termed the bluegrass of Ireland, he was familiar with the best classes of horses, and on his arrival in Lexington he sought employment from the then horsemen of this great breeding district—Drs. Herr and Underwood, and in the single course of a year and a half showed so much natural ability that he was assigned charge of Dr. Underwood's stables. The war was then going on and many officers of the Union army, who had a fondness for the horse, especially trotters, took such a fancy for young Treacy that he got an appointment in the quartermaster's department at Camp Nelson, where he soon overcame every obstacle and at once rose from one position to another until we find this young fellow having charge of the transportation of that great camp, and under him about 5,000 employees. In this department he continued until the war was over, and returned to Lexington in 1866, at which time he again resumed his horse trading and training, patronized by all sections of Kentucky, branching out each year as time advanced and making Kentucky horses noted in every market in the States, and today he is the best known man in the business in Europe or America. Now we come to deal with him as a citizen. When good material had to be sought to keep Democracy in power in Lexington, and when such men and able lawyers as General John B. Huaton, M. C. Johnson, W. C. P. Breckinridge, and such men as Dennis Mulligan, Major John R. Wiley and others had to be in line, B. J. Treacy was sought after and prevailed on to serve in the then only body governing the city, thus making him the oldest member of the city government. He is also one of the trustees of the Catholic cemetery, and had been secretary of the St. Vincent de Paul society for years, president of the Irish National League, one of the original members and founders of the Trotting Horse Breeders' association, a member of the old Kentucky Racing association; also member of the National Trotting association; is now president of the Chamber of Commerce of Lexington, and president of the Council—a position he has justly earned by his straightforward course in that body.—Lexington Transcript.

A Marvellous Exhibit.

Secretary Rusk, of the Government Department of Agriculture, is preparing what is certain to be pronounced a marvellous exhibit at the Columbian Exposition. It will be at once a striking demonstration of the broad scope and efficient work of the department of which he is the head, and a school of instruction for all who are interested in agricultural matters. It will include full illustrations of various insect depredations, a mammoth globe representing graphically the history of pleuro-pneumonia and its remarkable extermination in America; a model of the famous Death Valley, with its strange fauna and flora; and a working set of a modern weather station's outfit. Under the immediate supervision of Expert Hubbard the most complete and comprehensive collection of grains ever made is being prepared, with the co-operation of the farmers in this country and in foreign parts. Samples of wheat grown in every county in the United States will be shown. Grains from Peace river in northern Canada to Patagonia, from Russia to India, will be in the collection; every seed picked by hand and the varieties arranged in tasteful glass compartments with labels indicating the name, place, weight and effects of the soil and general climatic conditions. There are now collected 8,000 samples of wheat, 1,000 of oats, 8,000 of rye, 3,000 of barley, 300 of buckwheat, 1,000 of corn (besides the exhibit of corn in the ear), and proportionate numbers of the various other grains and garden products. An effort is being made to secure from Egypt one of the original father wheat plants.

The wife of Abner Bertha, of Mason county, recently gave birth to twins, and the mother was surprised to find that one of the infants had four teeth when born.

A SORRY RECORD.

Harrison Has Done Nothing to Merit Popular Commendation.

President Harrison has completed three years of his administration and must accept popular judgment as to his record. It will be recalled that the president's high office as the result of a blind and exact sentiment on the tariff question, ingeniously wrought up for the occasion and lastingly to be followed by a reaction disastrous to republican interests. This reaction set in so soon as the excitement of election had subsided, but Mr. Harrison based his policy upon a total misapprehension of the true state of affairs. He proceeded upon the theory that the people had acted deliberately and upon mature judgment as to the issues involved in the campaign.

Chalmers was put in charge of the civil service policy and promptly demonstrated the insincerity of the party platform by cleaning out thirty thousand offices, and by giving the highest office and assurance that he was doing the country's will were not disturbed by the November elections of 1888, when, for the first time in thirty years, when such a president's high office service kept going without protest or intervention. The scandal in the position office created public distrust and the post office department has been in a constant state of disaffection. The department of justice was prostituted in Dudley's behalf and the unfaithful instrumentality has since been asked by the president to come up again. Patronage was manipulated in the Quay order of losses and to cause the party organs. Extraneous was given full play in the building of big war vessels and to the country, and the treasury to respect enterprises.

In 1890 Blaine began to feel the foundation of republican supremacy shaking and implored homeopathic remedies of the country. Harrison remained in a pleasant state of magnanimity until the crash came in the fall, when Massachusetts, Michigan, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin, Kansas, and Ohio, the republican states avowed a democratic faith through the ballot box. Then the truth dawned upon the president and he went about the country to restore popular confidence by taking what train waited, that his awakening was too late. Since then he has passed through the ordeal of seeing the secretary of state and the popular choice for president Harrison attempted to win confidence and arouse enthusiasm in the Cuban affair, but Blaine made the hope for fruit as the apple of discord. Now the president is producing plenty of stage thunder while negotiating with David Salisbury in regard to the salt fisheries, but the sensible public are disgusted.

Mr. Harrison will probably be recommended for he holds the whip hand and runs the machine, but the issue that was misunderstood in 1888 has been grossly abused by the people and a united effort of democracy means a democratic successor to Mr. Harrison. A vast majority will disclaim him for the principles that he represents, the times that he has done and the things that he has left undone. Detroit Free Press.

VAGUE RESOLUTIONS.

Are Unlucky Republicans in Favor of Free Coinage?

The Ohio-holders' machine in Indiana has given President Harrison the delegates from his own state, but it cannot give him the electors.

Indiana is a democratic state. The plurality in the last election was nearly twenty thousand. The congressional delegation stands eleven democrats to two republicans, with an aggregate democratic plurality of twenty-three thousand. The legislature is democratic on joint ballot, by a vote of twenty to nine. The resolution of the ballot put a check on the Dorsey-Binley method of carrying the state by organized bribery. It scarcely needs the explanation that the republican revolution in the recent convention to assure the state to the democrats, with a nominal candidate and a sound platform.

The republican resolutions are bone-bone on the tariff, defiant in defense of the billion dollar congress, evasive on silver and bronzed for the dispenser of spoils. Benjamin Harrison.

The silver plank is noteworthy, as the delegates from the republican side of the president's own state. It declares that:

"We are in favor of honest money, of a dollar for its value, and that the government shall be paid in the payment of debts."

Is not the 70-cent silver dollar, or its paper representative, of "like value" with the gold dollar in the payment of debts? The government fiat, adopted by a republican congress and signed by President Harrison, makes it a legal tender and receivable for public debts. Will not the proposition to value the dollar at its full value in the payment of debts, if he bill should pass? This is the objection of honest, sound-money men to the free coinage of these dollars. Harrison would, under the new coinage, be acceptable to the Indiana republicans.

A republican hoarder is a very uncertain quantity. —N. Y. World.

—Three thousand tons of tin plate are on the ocean headed for the United States. Maj. J. M. Smith has now comfortably installed as governor of Ohio, however, this incident and others like it pass unnoticed by the Chicago Times.

AREPUBLICAN ON HARRISON.

Mr. Senator Farwell "Sings Up" The Chief Executive.

Charles R. Farwell, formerly a senator from Illinois, does not take kindly to the suggestion that Benjamin Harrison shall be renominated. On his way to Europe Mr. Farwell stops in New York, on an Atlantic voyage, long enough to describe the aforesaid Benjamin as a "consummate egotist" and to predict his overwhelming rout in the event of his nomination. His words were: "So far as Harrison, 'Little Benny,' is concerned, his election is absolutely out of the question. Those who know him best like him least. He is a consummate egotist and does not know how to treat people in a gentlemanly manner. Egotism is his inspiration and guide. He is a little man with a little mind. He works hard, his friends say. Yes, he works hard—looks after the affairs of his kitchen and arranging eight hundred-dollar appointments. I have known an instance where he drew a check for thirty-nine cents, and the well-known chef, who went from the Richelieu hotel in Chicago to work for Harrison, gave up his position on account of the meddling of the president in the affairs of the kitchen. I myself, saw in a Chicago paper a fac simile of the thirty-nine-cent check given by Harrison to Hugo to pay for milk."

We would not abate one iota of the respect due to the statements of Senator Farwell, but the remark is irresistible that so long as the millman was paid it certainly is matter of indifference whether it was for electricity in currency. The main point is that the millman got his money. In his further arraignment of Harrison Mr. Farwell says: "Harrison is undoubtedly a good man, but I am not sure whether it is known here in New York or not, but it is a fact that 'Little Benny' has been coquetting with Jay Gould. Gould and his associates have been in the white house, and it is said that the telegraphic rate legislation fathered by Waukegan has been talked of by Gould and Harrison, and that an agreement has been made between them which provides for the clipping in of a sum of money toward the campaign expenses by Gould if 'Benny' should get the nomination."

It is not probable, Mr. Harrison should be renominated, Senator Farwell will have occasion to return to the democratic party of which he was a member in good standing some forty years ago, that democracy is an able stayer. It exists so long that when the repentant sinner desires to do so he has an opportunity to return. —Chicago Times.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

—Taking it all around, the trusts appear to be in hard luck these days. —McKivier's true. That will be buried at the stake next November. —Chicago Globe.

—When the Harrison administration gets turned out in March, 1894, it will leave behind a mess of trouble and a treasury deficit to show for its work. —St. Louis Republic.

—The democrats have indeed "got together" on a most important feature of tariff reform which the free world will look for to push the home with a solid party vote. —N. Y. World.

—All the republican papers agree upon one proposition, that Levi P. Morton must be renominated for vice president, unless a man with just as eloquent a pocket hole can be induced to take the place. —Brooklyn Eagle.

—Green B. Hamlin appears to have anything rather than distinguished address on the subject of the tariff. He is a member of the important department entrusted to his charge. —Boston Globe.

—Each summer, while pensioning camp-followers and coffee-cookers of the civil war, has permitted the widow of a soldier of the Mexican war to perish from starvation. Her husband made a fortune as a lawyer, but died when he was sixty. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

—The kick in the Indiana republican convention against Harrison was not so vigorous as Mr. Butler would have been glad to see it. The moral for the president to bear in mind is that one never makes a friend of the man whom he keeps out of the hall that he desires to see. —N. Y. World.

—President Harrison ought to invite the New Jersey potter to dine with him off that imported china bearing that legend "E. Pluribus Unum." As members of the lower or better world, the heavy duty is imposed on French china, they would undoubtedly enjoy a well off the foreign product in the company of the man to whom they look for the carrying out of the policy which is intended to keep it out of the country. —Detroit Free Press.

—Republicans should carefully take this strong declaration on the subject of coluting silver. They are just now respectfully referred to that portion of their platform adopted at Chicago, which reads: "The republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money, and condemns the policy of the democratic administration in its efforts to denationalize money." Against the position of 1888 it will not do to ask honest citizens in 1892 to accept the edict of Wall street and denationalize silver or provide for gold that silver cannot fill. —Chicago Times.

WHY BOYS LIKE A NOISE.

It Is a Healthy Symptom and a Good Feature Ought to be Mended.

"I wonder why it is that boys do so enjoy making a noise?" exclaimed Mrs. Hogg, holding her ears with both hands, while her two youngest daughters paraded through the house with a drum and tin bowl which a wicked uncle had given them for Christmas.

"My dear," replied Mr. Hogg, looking up from his newspaper, "you must understand that a boy does not really make a noise because he likes to so much as for the reason he can not help it. The cause is simply that there is a greater supply of excitement to his nervous system than he can get rid of in the ordinary way which grows people adopt. I believe I express myself clearly."

"Not very, it seems to me," said Mrs. Hogg.

"Then I will put it more plainly," responded the doctor. "You are perhaps acquainted with the fact that the human body is made up of cells."

"I have heard you say so, my dear."

"Well, then, you must comprehend that each of these cells has a nucleus, just as an egg has a yolk in it. The nuclei of the cells which make up a child's body are much larger than those of the cells which compose your physical system or mine. As the latter get older these cells become steadily smaller, but during youth the nerve battery thus made up is so much more powerful as to store up an excessive amount of energy. The boy keeps it in for awhile and then he must explode. That is exactly what is taking place with Bobby and Jimmy at present."

"They are getting rid of their superfluous energy through the medium of a drum and a tin bowl. It is thoroughly healthy, and you ought not to object."

"If that is really the case," said Mrs. Hogg with a sigh, "I am more resigned."

"As I was about to say," continued the doctor, "the nuclei keep on diminishing in size as one grows older until a given person has excessive excitement disagreeable, and is annoyed by noises. I believe that you were forty on your last birthday, my dear? The reason that the boy keeps on growing is that while the nuclei of his cells are diminishing the cells themselves are multiplying in number. After one gets old and a certain time of life has been reached the cells no longer multiply fast enough to supply the places of those which die. Then arrives a period of what we call decrepitude, and eventually the individual, if no disease supervenes, perishes of mere debility."

"That may well be," admitted Mrs. Hogg, "but my observation is that this business of knowing how one is constructed and how soon one must wear out in the course of nature does not console for the fact. That is rather repulsive in ignorance of what cell physiology and not be obliged to think of myself and my children and our inside works as if we were so many machines."

"Science seems to have no attractions for women," muttered the doctor, who became absorbed in his newspaper again. —Washington Star.

A SAFE ASSERTION.

Shillaber Said the Friend of a Friend of a Friend.

They were discussing the virtues and failings—principally the latter—of a man slightly known to both of them. The thin, sharp little fellow knew the subject of discussion somewhat better than the heavy-set man, and spoke with a trifle more assurance.

"I always thought he was a scamp," said the heavy-set man.

"He is a scamp," replied the little fellow.

"Are you sure?"

"Positive. Why, I know of a case where he cheated an orphan out of half an inheritance."

"Yes, I heard of that."

"Then he failed just to beat his creditors out of some money?"

"He was told."

"He has been charged with setting fire to his store to get the insurance."

"I know that has been rumored, but then Shillaber—"

"Yes, Shillaber has had more experience than most of his kind."

"Well Shillaber speaks highly of him."

"Who says so?"

"Why, I heard him myself."

"How so?"

"Oh, it was just a passing remark. His name was mentioned and Shillaber said he hadn't a crooked hair in his head."

"Shillaber said that?"

"Yes."

"Oh, well," explained the little man, "I suppose Shillaber thought you had noticed that the scoundrel is as bad as a billiard ball." —Chicago Tribune.

A Case in Point.

"It's but a step from the sublime to the ridiculous."

GETTING A START.

How an Ambitious Young Man Held Real Estate and Peaches.

It was in the spring of 1887 when a small office was started on the north-west corner of Madison and La Salle streets—capital, ten dollars and fifty cents; annual receipts, two hundred and fifty dollars. First year was a hard pull. I had a sign out: "Real Estate and Law." The law department consisted chiefly in drawing deeds, trust deeds, bills of sale, etc. The real-estate department did most anything in the way of real estate, but not that period of Chicago existed when the total transfers for an entire year amounted to about two dozens one can imagine my share was exceedingly small.

It was midsummer, and receipts for that month had been fewer than the previous month. A respectable-looking young man came into my office, hailing from a western city. He said he had not been renting three square miles per day for quite a long time, and asked the privilege of sleeping in the office. The thought struck me I could utilize him, so I went down with him to South Water street and purchased two nice baskets of early Crawford peaches. I borrowed a door from a carpenter friend of mine in the alley, and with the aid of two ash barrels set the newcomer up in business opposite my office entrance on Madison street. The peach department thrived. First day he took in five dollars, and we increased the stock to such an extent that we had quite a thriving trade. This fellows name we called Jones. He had a very persuasive way of enticing the young ladies as they passed by to purchase peaches, in fact he caught everybody, and many of Chicago's citizens will remember a very thing. Indeed all that summer on the corner. "Now then, ladies and gentlemen, here is the place to get your fine early Crawford peaches." Superintendent of the building office, and as a consequence he was the annoying me. I said: "No, let the poor fellow earn a living he is all right."

In fact, had the peach department been suspended the real-estate firm would have collapsed. Soon after this a South Water street merchant, noting the ability of the young man to sell his fruit, offered him a guaranteed salary of one hundred dollars per month, and he left me. But he did not thrive for quite awhile, but one day, as he walked with him, an old gentleman with long bushy whiskers strolled into the office and asked me if I was a lawyer.

I confessed, and he gave me the description of a piece of property on the north side, the title to which he said was very much mixed. He had come all the way from Hamilton, Pacific ocean, to have this straightened up, and he would give me half there was "in it," if I could perfect the title. The night before this number of my old college chums had called to see how I was getting along. We were all graduates of the Chicago Law university, and I was the only one who had the nerve and recklessness to start an office; the others had taken electrical positions in established law offices. The boys used to come into my office occasionally to see if my elbows were wearing out, and prophesied that I would soon have to give up my office and go with them, but the work was so well settled. I went to work, and perseverance won. I bought the interest of the different owners in the North Side lot, and eventually the lot and made eight hundred dollars clear. I was afraid to trust my bank in Chicago with my money. I used to hide it under my pillow, and kept a big ax under the door to protect it.

My fellow graduates called again—it was Christmas eve. I had a first-class new suit of clothes and a stovepipe hat, and they were greatly surprised. When I exhibited to them my roll of bills they turned pale with envy and left the office. Three days after that six new real estate and law office signs were hung up, and I think that every one of the gentlemen who started in business on that day has prospered, either as a lawyer or real estate dealer. No less than three occupy positions on the judicial bench, and perhaps my best effort to establish a business, in that time had its beneficial effect. —Robert C. Tivins, in Banner of Gold.

Take a Long Look Ahead.

Never decide hastily upon a piece of furniture; purchase as much for the future as much as for the present. It is true fashions change in furniture from year to year, but it is only people of low taste who follow a fashion of this kind. The plain, elegant styles are quite expensive as compared with the ordinary pieces which are turned out of factories by the thousand, and which are covered with the material to catch the popular fancy. One quickly wears out such furniture; besides, it is not so well made as the plainer styles, and therefore gets out of order easily. Get the thing made for the kitchen, bedroom, dining-room and sitting-room before doing anything about the parlor, and let every article be of good quality, no matter how plain. Make an estimate of what you can spend on each room; then get the best things possible. —Ladies' Home Journal.

HAZEL GREEN HERALD.

SPENCER COOPER, Editor.

HAZEL GREEN, KY.:

FRIDAY, May 6, 1892.

CURRENT NEWS AND COMMENT.

At the May day parade in Chicago three men were arrested for carrying the anarchist red flag.

There will be a building at the World's Fair where a woman can leave her baby and get a check for it while she sees the show.

A Chicago thief a few nights ago stole and made away successfully with an entire house, except the cellar and cellar walls.

The centennial of Kentucky's admission into the Union is to be celebrated in June at Lexington, at Louisville and at Maysville.

A LEVEL-HEADED Mississippi exchange says: "Our platform for the coming campaign: More hogs, less statesmen; more hominy, less hedges."

It is estimated by a Frankfort calculator, that of the $125,000 expended on the General Assembly so far, but $30,000 has gone to pay for needed legislation.

A MESSAGE written on a stone in 1809 was found in a creek near Angola, Ill., by Edgar Bates. It stated that the writer had been captured by Indians and was to be buried.

The other night a basket containing white boy babies ten days old was left in the doorway of R. B. Metcalfe's house at Lexington. It will be sent to some charitable institution.

FOUR vagrant negroes, one a woman, were recently sold from the block in Fayette, Mo., and the blacks now threaten a race war unless this is stopped or the whites served the same way.

FREDERICK WARD, who swindled Gen. Grant out of his money, and who aided Fish to ruin the Marine Bank, of New York, was released from Sing Sing prison Saturday, having served six and a half years.

It is reported that the United States sub-treasury in New York was recently robbed of $135,000 just after the close of banking hours, but this is denied by Ellis H. Roberts, Assistant Treasurer of the United States.

W. N. HALDEMAN recently celebrated the seventy-first anniversary of his birthday. He is the chief owner of both the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times, and is a constant worker even at this good round age.

DAVENVILLE doesn't want to be citified. The Democrat says: "A petition has been circulated in the city asking the Council to repeal the ordinance against the running at large on the streets of stock of various kinds."

NEAR Goodlettsville, Tenn., two young ladies named Bruce were overpowered in their room and outraged by two negroes. A few hours later five suspects were captured. Henry Grizzard was identified by the girls and lynched. The other four were sent to jail to await developments.

BECAUSE Charles Massey, a Protestant, was paying attention to Miss Nellie Gaynor, a Catholic, at Burlington, N. J., the priest of the church of which the young lady's father was a member became displeased, and stopping in the midst of a prayer, drove Mr. Gaynor from the church at the point of a pistol.

SECRETARY BLAINE has decided to send an interesting exhibit to the World's Fair at Chicago. It will consist of the original Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, the Articles of Federation, the famous protest of the Philadelphia Carpenter's Company to King George III., and other documents which are the hallmarks of the country itself of our national history. These will not be shown by fac simile, but the originals. They will be shipped in steel caskets and guarded by soldiers while en route and at the fair.

MORGAN COUNTY.

Caney Killings.

John Patrick, of Bloomington, is here buying sheep.

Born, to the wife of R. I. Watson, a 121 pound girl.

During the recent tides a vast amount of timber was floated down the Licking river.

Jno. Patrick, of this place, who has been very low at Mouth of Caney, is able to return home.

T. J. Burton recently bought of Jas. Anderson, of Magoffin county, a 5-year-old mare for $125.

Greenville Lodge, No. 655, F. & A. M., meets first Saturday night in May. All members requested to be present.

Your correspondent desires to return thanks to the citizens of Yocum generally, and especially to mine host Tilman Lewis, for courtesies extended during the Morgan county Union. Mr. Lewis is a representative citizen of that part of the county and possesses an amiable and intelligent family.

Judge Wm. Lykins, who has been chief engineer of the Caney post-office so long that the mind of man runneth not to the contrary, has been ousted and A. J. Watson appointed in his stead, and that night his wife gave birth to a bouncing boy, and we guess Jack will call his name Ben Harrison.

May 2. FALCON.

The Electoral College.

One correspondent asks, "to settle a controversy," the number of votes in the next electoral college, and another wants to know "how many votes belong to the Democratic, how many to the Republican, and how many to the doubtful States?" To satisfy as far as we can both questioners, we subjoin the States with their respective electoral votes. Our second querist can group them as he sees fit. There are so many doubtful States this year that it would be waste of time and space to arrange them by groups in this column as requested:

The fear that our country may be entirely denuded of its forests is not as general, or at least we do not hear as much on the subject as formerly. That our pine and poplar trees are being converted into lumber at an astonishing rate is true, but the growth of timber in the older portions of the United States seems to be on the increase. Here in Woodford, and in the bluegrass counties, generally, a great deal of pasture land has within the past few years been silently and stealthily covered with a young growth of hickories, walnut, cherry, and other valuable trees. Several years ago it was supposed that the supply of commercial timber in the bluegrass country was well nigh exhausted, but this was evidently a mistake. Every day in the year a large number of logs can be seen at the two railroad depots in Versailles awaiting shipment. Many of these go to Europe.—Woodford Sun.

Sunday evening about 8 o'clock the large barn at Fairlawn stock farm, one mile north of Lexington, owned by A. S. McCann, was destroyed by fire. The stable contained twenty-eight head of well-bred trotting stock, including the Electioneer stallion, May King, that cost $12,000 a few months ago. Nineteen head were rescued, while nine head were burned. Two were sisters to Phil Thompson, five yearlings by sons of Electioneer and a four-year-old colt by Robert McGregor. The barn was erected by Gen. Withers, the late owner of Fairlawn, and was valued at $15,000; fully insured. The stock burned was valued at from $15,000 to $20,000.

A very sympathetic gentleman, who had the welfare of the ladies at heart, delivered a lecture on "The Duties of Husbands" to a Chattanooga audience. In impressive sentences he urged the gentlemen to treat their wives kindly, and had not completed his advice when an officer appeared upon the stage and arrested him for larceny.

Address SPENCER TOWSER, Hazel Green, Ky.

Emery James has our thanks for a mess of very fine young onions.

Willie L. Day came home on a flying visit from Camargo last Saturday.

Rev. J. T. Pieratt will preach at the old Grassy church Sunday at 10:30 A. M.

J. B. Cecil will be here again on the 17th inst. with his horse Forrest Stonewall.

Rev. Sawyer preached two interesting sermons at the M. E. church last Sabbath.

That good lady, Mrs. Belle Godsey, has placed us under obligations for a lot of fine young onions.

Miss Jennie Robinet, of Hager, a former student at the Academy, was visiting friends in our city several days during the past week.

D. B. Redwine, of Jackson, passed through town Sunday en route to Canpton from Sandy Hook, where he had been attending court.

Officers of the Hazel Green Fair Association will be elected tomorrow (Saturday) for the ensuing year, and President Bode desires a full attendance of the stockholders.

W. C. Perkins, one of our friends and fellow-countrymen, has been summoned on the United States grand jury at Covington, which convenes next week. Mr. Perkins will leave for Covington on Saturday.

Dr. B. Hutton, of Lane, was here Sunday and was en route to Grassy to escort his wife home, she having spent a week visiting relatives in the neighborhood of Mize post-office. Dr. Hutton is a subscriber to THE HERALD, and says his children would not be without the paper. He informs us that he is now enjoying a fine practice in his profession.

Upon information that we considered reliable, we last week published an account of the drowning of Bob Cummins, Jr., at Clay City, and now learn that there was no foundation, in fact, for the statement. Our informant gave us the details as published, and also told other parties the same, almost word for word. We are sorry we made the mistake and hope no harm has been done.

L. B. Maupin, representing the well-known onion house of D. H. Carpenter, at Catlettsburg, was a guest at the Day House Monday and Tuesday, and while here sold two very handsome bills of goods. He also sold three good bills at Campton and one at Sallwater. Through his card in THE HERALD, and by strict attention to business and fair dealing, Mr. Maupin has built up a splendid trade in this section, and Mr. Carpenter was to be congratulated that he has so good a representative in this territory.

The editor of THE HERALD and his better-judged moved into their new residence on Rich Hill Tuesday, and that night the following ladies pumpled them, viz: Mrs. Lou Day, Mrs. Ellen Pieratt, Mrs. Rilda Day, Mrs. Ellen Swango and Mrs. Emma Evans, each of them bringing a handsome tribute of their esteem. The donations consisted of preserves, jellies, pickles, etc., and a handsome pin cushion, all the articles being useful ones, and we wish to return thanks for the same and assure these ladies that their kindness will ever be gratefully remembered. In this connection we wish also to mention Lula and Mattie Evans, who each contributed to the donation, and they, too, shall always have a warm spot in our hearts.

WOLFE COUNTY.

Lee City Locusts.

What thoughts must seem to surge up in the mind of a writer as he contemplates the task of sketching for the various departments of a newspaper. This is the history of an independent publication, therefore it has the confidence of the people. Hence the pronounced popularity of THE HERALD.

The Sunday School that has been organized at this place is under the supervision of interested teachers, and is being conducted in a most successful manner.

The new house of C. B. Allen is now being framed. It will soon be by far the best house in this part of the county.

From all appearances there will soon be a new building erected for the post-office at this place.

May 2.

PROHIBITION.

Disastrous Fire at Mt. Sterling.

At half past six o'clock Sunday morning fire was discovered in the rear of the post-office building, on Main street, Mt. Sterling, and in two hours' time the entire block, from the Christian church, on the west, to the Fizer building, on Broadway, was in great danger. The high wind prevailing greatly hindered the firemen, and as a result nine valuable business houses were destroyed. The Sentinel-Democrat newspaper office, J. H. Brunner's shoe store the post-office, Hainline's barn, Enoch's bargain house, T. P. Martin & Co., dry goods and notions, Walt M. Gay & Co., grocers, and Mrs. Kate O. Clarke, millinery, are a mass of blackened ruins.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but is supposed to have been caused by a match or a lighted cigar carelessly thrown in the rear of the post-office, where the fire was first discovered. Startling rumors were about that the post-office had been robbed and then burned, but they lacked foundation. Winchester was telegraphed to for help and responded with an engine.

The Christian church was only saved from utter destruction by the energetic work of the firemen and the iron siding of the Sentinel-Democrat office adjoining. The interior of the church was badly damaged by water. The buildings burned were handsome and valuable business houses in the center of the business part of the town, and their destruction is complete.

The total loss, as nearly as can be estimated, will reach $85,000, with insurance aggregating about one-half that sum. The contents of the post-office were destroyed. Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Marshall, occupying rooms on the second floor, lost everything, and the contents of the rooms over Enoch's bargain house, occupied as law offices, dress making establishment, etc., were lost. Taken altogether, the fire was one of the most disastrous in the city's history.

The following preachers have signified their intention of attending the Preachers' Institute, to be held here, beginning August 8, 1892, viz: G. W. Miller, Hall's Store; J. M. Downing, West Liberty; James Young, Waco; W. L. Lucy, Sellers; Adolphus Gibbs, Grassy; W. C. Nickell, John Johnston, West Liberty; E. W. Marcum, Clay City; D. G. Combs, Hazel Green; W. H. Taulbee, Sam Taulbee, Lee City; D. H. Faller, Daysborough. Other preachers who intend to participate in the Institute should notify W. H. Cord, of this place, at their earliest convenience, that arrangements may be made to accommodate them.

A remarkable flow of oil occurred on Frozen Creek, this county, last week. On the farm of James Cape a stream of black oil burst forth from the earth near the creek, and flowed for fifteen minutes so freely as to raise the creek a foot. It blackened and oiled the saw logs for a mile below and left its mark on everything it touched. Half a mile below this outbreak a spring has flowed for years, from which issues petroleum all the time, but the quantity is small. This oil is inflammable, has lubricating qualities, and is the real petroleum. We would like to see the petroleum developed.—Jackson Hustler.

With this issue we publish the advertisement of Fred J. Heintz, manufacturing jeweler, of Lexington, and direct the attention of our readers to the same. Mr. Heintz is one of the few manufacturers of jewelry to be found in Central Kentucky, and his work demonstrates that he is one of the best in the State. All kinds of jewelry is manufactured to order, and any of our readers who have business of that kind will do well to give him a call when in the bluegrass metropolis. In addition to his own work he also carries a full line of other goods, which the advertisement enumerates. See it and send him an order.
